Reading this report

- — means this historical date or duration was not recorded. Missing historical dates and hours do not invalidate frozen revenue.
- Revenue uses validated frozen billing values at their recognition date. It is not confirmation that the client has paid.
- Salary uses confirmed history and actual calendar-day allocation, including confirmed joining and leaving dates. Rounded monthly allocations are summed for a financial year.
- Work value after salary = total work value minus salary cost. Salary ROI = that difference divided by salary cost, multiplied by 100. They exclude rent, materials, tax and other studio expenses. The difference is displayed without decimals; calculations use exact minor units.
- In-progress periods include available values through the as-of date. Future months are excluded.
- Project hours cover the whole project, not only the selected period. Finalized hours use frozen billing duration or duration explicitly recorded on a legacy invoice. Unavailable historical hours display —; frozen money remains valid. Unfinished values are estimates.
- Project percentages are shares of the studio's Total Work Value in the same currency across the entire selected period, including finalized revenue and unfinished estimates. Rounded shares may not total 100%. Starting dates use recorded project dates; the second date is completion for finalized projects and last edit for unfinished projects. Unknown dates remain unavailable.
- Unfinished files with no recorded time contribute zero and are excluded from the financial project list. Untitled Project labels preserve separate underlying project identities.
- Unfinished-work estimates and current profile rates do not reconstruct historical revenue or salary. Currencies stay separate.
- Total work value combines finalized revenue recognized in the selected period with unfinished projects last updated within those dates. Unfinished values use authoritative reconciled lifetime work when available, current billing rates and complexity, including saved and unsaved projects. Legacy-only projects use their recorded counters. Pending or corrupt work history withholds complete totals. These are live estimates, not historical month-end WIP balances. Finalized projects are not counted again as unfinished work.
